DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: Lines 25 to 30 on page 8 discloses chemical compositions are given in the enclosed Table 1, yet there is no Table 1. Moreover, a brief description of drawings is needed in specification.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1 to 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 recites "...if appropriate, a dressing operation after hot rolling..." which is indefinite because it is uncertain when it is or it is not appropriate to apply. Also the term "bell-type" is indefinite and the word "type" needs to be omitted.

Claim 1 awkwardly recites "...has a bake-hardening potential after a subsequent deformation and for a subsequent temperature treatment..." It is recommended to use language such as ---has a bake-hardening potential after a subsequent temperature treatment and subsequent deformation---. Same applies to claim 12. Note that according to applicant's specification on page 6, bake-hardening potential occurs only after brief annealing followed by dressing (deformation).

Art Unit: 1742

The compositions of St12 to St15 and ZstEI and ZstE are not disclosed in the claims or specification.

Claim 3 is indefinite because strip is subjected to recrystallized annealing while coiled and then subjected to brief annealing as an uncoiled strip. The step of uncoiling is missing from the process claim and should be incorporated.

Process claims needs to recite active steps, e.g. dressing, cooling

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the English abstract of Russian patent 21654650.

The English abstract discloses a steel sheet formed by hot rolling, coiling, cold rolling and recrystallizing annealing in a bell-shaped furnace at a temperature 40 to 70C above AC1 followed by air cooling to lower temperatures. Although prior art does not teach a cooling rate of greater than 1C/s as recited by claim 1, such would be expected because similar to present invention, the Russian patent teaches air cooling.

Claims 11 to 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arai et al (US Patent 4,584,035), Japanese patent 403044423 or Japanese patent 404268057 or Japanese patent 07216501.

Art Unit: 1742

The abstracts of each patent discloses a cold-rolled strip or sheet with good deforming properties and having a carbon content of 0.02% or more with cementite precipitations throughout the matrix. Hence the prior art discloses a product substantially similar to the claimed product, differing only in the manner by which it is produced. The burden falls to the applicant to show that any process steps associated with the claimed product result in a materially different product from those of the prior art, because there is nothing in the record before the examiner to reasonably conclude that applicant's product differs in kind from those obtained by the references. See In re Brown, 173USPQ685 and In re Fessmann, 180USPQ324.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3 to 10 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The art of record does not teach or fairly suggest the process for producing a cold-rolled strip or sheet of steel comprising the steps of hot rolling, coiling, cold rolling, recrystallized annealing in a bell-shaped furnace while coiled and then subjected to cooling at a rate of 1C/s or greater at a temperature of 200C to A1, subsequently uncoiling steel strip or sheet followed by brief annealing at temperature T for an annealing period of 20 minutes or less in order to enhance bake-hardening potential followed by a dressing operation (gently rolling 0.5 to 2%).
